NEWS AND COMMENT.

PENNSYLVANIA will vote on the Prohibition Amendment, June 18th.

JUST NOW BUFFALO BILL is dividing honors with WHITLAW REID in Paris.

THE European war cloud is again visible on the "distant shores."

SAM JONES made about one thousand conversions during his meeting in Danville, Va.

RUMORS of an extra session of Congress, to convene in October, are afloat in Washington.

TREACHEROUS DANNA, of the Sun, predicts that "CLEVELAND will never get there in 1892."

RUMOR says HARRISON has his right eye on Attorney-General MILLER for the vacancy on the Supreme Court bench.

IT is not at all unlikely that JOHNNY WANNAMAKER is "laying his pipes" for the Presidential nomination in '92. But alas!

THE famous old building in Charlotte, for a long time the headquarters for CORNWALLIS, was destroyed by fire last Saturday night.

WITH all his faults, Mr. HARRISON has the good sense to know that he can't administer a Republican administration with Democrats.

THE Farmers' Alliances of North Carolina have blood in their eyes for "Trusts," and promise to make it lively for them in the future.

IT is reported that JAMES GORDON BENNETT, the Millionaire Editor of the New York Herald, has gone on a trip to Khartoum, the capital of Mahdi.

THE Wilmington Messenger, with its characteristic enterprise, has donned a new dress and is now one of the handsomest and ablest edited papers in the South.

"WILLIAM DAWSON, vice-president of the Total Abstinence Society of England, was arrested for being drunk." Doubtless he is convinced that prohibition don't prohibit.

THE Wilmington Star thinks the "Blocks of five," the persuasive powers of "bushels of boodle," and "fat-frying" in 1888, will be nothing to compare with what will be used for the same purpose in '92.

THERE will be no strike at the steel works of CARNIEGIE & Co., Pittsburg, Pa., the men all having submitted to the reduction of 20 per cent. in their wages. Protection! Protection! thou art a jewel!

THE fight between the Northern and Southern Iron Companies has developed the fact that the South is in the saddle as far as the production of pig iron is concerned, where she will remain, Mr. HARRISON to the contrary notwithstanding.

THE New York Sun very wisely "advises Southern Democrats who have protective inclinations to leave the Parsons-Seddon wind-bag combination severely alone." We've no objection to the advice, but the source from which it came is the worst feature in the case.

ELECTRICITY is cutting right much of a figure in this day and time. For instance: An omnibus run by electricity, the only one in the world, has made successful trips in London. It runs on any kind of a street, without the use of rails, while the so-called electric omnibus of Paris is really a car running on a track.

WHAT queer ideas some people have. A Japanese editor at Tokio, strongly opposed to tobacco, proposes that all the gold, silver and copper pipes of those who have given up smoking or can be persuaded to do so, be collected and cast into two bells, one to be kept in Japan, the other to be sent to the Chicago Temperance Temple.

THE difference between Mr. HARRISON'S administration of the affairs of the government and that of Mr. CLEVELAND'S is about as perceptable as the difference between day and night. For instance: from March 17, 9,500 appointments have been made under HARRISON'S administration, including 600 Presidential Postmasters, 7,000 fourth-class Postmasters, 1,500 Railway Mail Service employes, 150 miscellaneous appointments and 200 department changes. For the same period under CLEVELAND there were about 2,000 all told.

THERE is nothing strange about JOHN and JAMES being good names for boys, yet JAMES appears to be better than any other for a candidate for President of the United States. We have had as many as five JAMESES in the Presidential chair within this century—JAMES MADISON, JAMES MONROE, JAMES K. POLK, JAMES BUCHANAN and JAMES A. GARFIELD. Moreover the father of President JAMES MADISON was named JAMES MADISON, and the father of President JAMES BUCHANAN was named JAMES BUCHANAN. But in the case of JAMES G. BLAINE there has been a failure up to this time. After the JAMESES the JOHNS have panned out next best—JOHN ADAMS, JOHN Q. ADAMS and JOHN TYLER.

Mr. Jefferson Davis's Home Life.

Capt. William G. Waller, who recently visited Beauvoir, the home of the Hon. Jefferson Davis. in Mississippi, writes as follows to the Richmond (Va.) Dispatch:

This place is certainly rightly named for those who are fond of water scenery no more beautiful view could be presented. Situated on the Mississippi sound, an arm of the gulf, no land is visible over the broad expanse of blue waters except that occasionally on clear days the trees on Ship Island, several miles distant, can be seen. It is an ideal Southern home of the ante-bellum type, and exactly such a place as would be at once conceded as specially suited for rest and leisure. To one who has been in harness for months, with scarcely an opportunity to draw a long breath, a visit here is like retiring to a bed for a good, long, refreshing nap after a hard days' labor.

Home life at Beauvoir is delightfully simple and unpretentious, and it is that which constitutes one of the great charms of existence. At present the household consists of Mr. and Mrs. Davis, Miss Winnie, "the daughter of the Confederacy," a title bestowed on her by Gov. Gordon, of Georgia, and by which she is now universally known, and Miss Lizzie Waller, a niece of Mrs. Davis, of almost the exact age of Miss Winnie. Up to a few days ago Mrs. J. Addison Hayes, now of Colorado Springs, Col., and her three children were also here on a visit. She is the oldest daughter of Mr. Davis, and is still remembered by many residents of Richmond as the "Little Maggie" of the days of the Confederacy.

During her stay she was surrounded by all the surviving members of his immdiate family; and your correspondent, therefore, had an unusually fine opportunity to witness the domestic life of this distinguished gentleman in all its attractiveness. It was simply delightful to see the tender devotion manifested by him to his entire household, but more particularly to his young grandchildren, all three of whom are remarkably bright, clever and winsome.

The greatest charm of Beauvoir life, however—at least to your correspondent—consists of the many conversations which it is his privilege to enjoy with Mr. Davis. Though the ex-Southern chieftain is in his eighty-first year, his form is yet erect and his mind as bright as ever. With a wonderfully retentive memory he has, in a life devoted largely to reading, study and thought, stored his mind with a remarkable fund of information, which he freely dispenses in the choicest language, while every topic of current daily notice is read and considered by him with as much care and interest as when he himself was an active contributor to his country's history. This and the varied career through which he has passed from the days of his early manhood to the present time, added to his acknowledged pre-eminence as a fascinating conversationalist, are what make his society at once most entertaining and instructive.

Sunshine.

Equally important with pure air in living apartments is sunshine. It carries with it radiance and cheer and vigor and good health. It is a purifier, warding off mould, moisture, gloom, depression, and disease. It should be admitted to every apartment of the house and made welcome at all times. It is a strong preventive to the disorders that visit shaded and musty places. It brings health and happiness that cannot be obtained from any other source. It is nature's own health-giving agent, and nothing can be substituted for it. It has no artificial counterpart. It does not only touch the physical body, but it reaches the mind and soul and purifies the whole existence of man. It may fade a carpet or upholstery but it will bring color to the cheek, light to the eye, and elasticity to the step. The closed and shaded windows may throw a richness of color upon the room, but it will bring paleness and feebleness to the occupants. This health agent is free to all, easily obtained, and one of the most economic health preservers we have, and ready to impart its efficacy at the rise of the curtain.

Give the Boy a Trade.

"Give the boy a trade," says the Montezuma Record, "or he may be compelled to learn one later in life, as it has been shown that there are more young men in the penitentiaries in this country than there are on the outside of them. The principal cause of this is that we are educating our young men for idle gentlemen, trying to make lawyers, preachers, doctors and clerks out of material that is needed for blacksmiths, carpenters, machinists and other honest "hewers of wood and drawers of water," It is a mistake, and a big one to teach boys and girls that labor is disgraceful, and to do nothing for a living is more becoming the society in which they have to move and have respect. Hang such society. It is rotten to the core and is ruining our country; and there are many sons and daughters who are now being educated to play the part of "leading lady" and "walking gentleman" in the great drama of life who will light out for the poor house or the penitentiary before the curtain drops on the last sad act of the play to which they have been educated by their too indulgent parents."

"Hear Me One Moment, Madame."

Puck.]

"Hear me one moment, madam!" said the peddler at the front door. "I have not been rendered incapable of active exertion by any sort of sad accident; I have not been laid up six months with inflammatory rheumatism; I have not lost my situation on account of my religious principles; I am not a poor man, but am doing pretty well in my line of business; I have not a wife and three children dependent upon me for support, for I am a contented bachelor, happy in the possession of no living relatives; I am not studying for the ministry; your next door neighbor did not mention your name to me: I never—"

"Step in," interrupted the weary woman, with a deep sigh of relief; "I have been waiting for you for the last ten years. Step in—I don't care what you're selling, whether it's horn combs or clothes-wringers, I'll buy. And if you'd like a cup of coffee or a glass of good hard cider, just say so. Step in—don't bother to wipe your feet!"

An electric fire engine is a new invention. It can be started at full speed, is much lighter than the steam fire engine, and possesses various other advantages.

The Use of Oil to Still the Waves.

Under the above title Lieutenant W. H. Beehler contributes to the March Century an account of the experiments made with oil in rough water. We quote the following account of two rescues: "The captain of the ship "Martha Cobb," loaded with petroleum, fell in with a sinking vessel during a heavy gale in the North Atlantic in December, 1886. The signal made stated the vessel was sinking and that all her boats had been stove. The "Martha Cobb" had lost her large boats, her bulwarks washed out, and decks swept in the same storm; the only boat left was a small sixteen foot dingey, which could not possibly live in the sea that was then running. The captain says he was puzzled and lay by for some hours hoping that the gale would moderate; but as there was no appearance of better weather and night coming on, he decided to make an attempt to rescue the crew of the sinking vessel. The "Martha Cobb" had a cargo of petroleum, some of which leaked, and the captain had noticed that the sea in the wake of the ship was much smoother when the pumps were worked.

"He signaled to the other vessel to haul by the wind while he luffed to windward, and at the same time started the pumps; but the ship drifted faster than the oil, and while the oil made the sea comparatively smooth to windward, it did not cover the sea leeward. He then ran down across the other vessel's stern hauled up close under her lee, and started the pumps again; at the same time also he emptied a five-gallon can of fish oil down the scuppers. The effect was magical. In twenty minutes the sea between and around the vessels were broken down. The long heavy swell remained, but the combers and breaking seas were all gone. The little dingey with three men had no difficulty in pulling to windward, and the crew were saved. The boat was deeply loaded and did not ship any water, although the sea was breaking fiercely outside the 'charmed' space in which the vessels lay on oiled seas.

"In June, 1885, the British ship "Slivemore" took fire and had to be abandoned when eight hundred miles north-east of the Seychelle Islands, Indian Ocean. The people took to the boats and made for Seychelle Islands. The third day after leaving the vessel a cyclone came up, and no one believed that the boats would live through it. Before they left the ship the boats had been supplied with oil for just such an emergency. Each boat got out a drag made of spars and oars lashed together, for what is known as a sea-anchor. Oakum saturated with paraffine was stuffed in long stockings hung over the bows of the boats. Before the oil was used the boats had been several times nearly filled with water and the occupants had to bail for their lives; but when oil was applied no further trouble was experienced. An oil-slick formed around the boats, which rode in perfect safety on tremendous swells which took the place of the previously breaking seas. Little if any water came over the sides of the boats, and the occupants could lie down and sleep. The boats eventually reached the islands, but every soul would have perished except for the forethought of Captain Conby, the captain of the "Slivemore."

President Carr's Call.

Raleigh Visitor.]

In accordance with the suggestions contained in the above, J. S. Carr, Esq., President of the State Association of Confederate Veterans, has issued the following:

Pursuant to the above resolution, I hereby call upon the Confederate veterans in each and every county of the State of North Carolina, to assemble at their respective court houses, on Thursday, the 4th day of July, 1889, to form a Confederate Veterans County Association, under the plan of organization heretofore adopted and published by this Association.

In counties where such associations have been already formed I call on them to meet on said day.

It is earnestly requested that all county associations formed and to be formed shall immediately transmit the proceedings at said July meeting to W. C. Stronach, Secretary of the Association at Raleigh, N. C., said proceedings to distinctly set forth the name and postoffice address of the president and secretary and the names of the executive committee thereof

It is most earnestly recommended and requested as of the utmost importance that at the said July meeting there shall be recommended for appointment by their association the names of two patriotic ladies for each township in each county, who shall be especially commissioned to aid in the glorious work of establishing a soldiers' home for the old and broken veterans of North Carolina. Let it be understood that this association is determined that a soldiers' home shall be built.

J. S. CARR, President.

Humanity's Average.

Medical Record.]

The average weight of male and adults is 130 pounds; of women about 110 pounds. The average height of American recruits is about 5 feet 9 inches. The average height of well-built men is 5 feet 9 inches; of women 5 feet 4 inches. One inch of height and two pounds of weight. The specific gravity of the body ranges from 0.950 to 1.030. The heart weighs 260 grammes in women and 330 grammes (10½ ounces) in men; the average weight is 292 grammes. The period of its maximum weight is between 50 and 80.

The amount of blood in the body is one-thirteenth the weight of the body, or 5 or 6 quarts, or 11 or 12 pounds. A man dies when he has lost a fifth of his blood. The heart with each contraction ejects 6 ounces of blood from each ventricle, at a pressure in the left ventricle of one-fourth of an atmosphere. The heart sends all the blood round the body twice every minute, or in about thirty-five contractions. A deadly poison injected into a vein kills in fifteen seconds, on the average; injected under the skin, in four minutes. A cubic millimetre of blood contains 5,000,000 blood cells in men, 4,500,000 in women. There are 300 red cells to every one white blood cell. The red cells have an average diameter of 1-3200 inch, the white cells of 1-25 000 inch. The specific gravity of the blood is 1-955.

Boston had on the 30th of April 2,000 saloons. On the 1st of May it had but 780. This is owing to the high license law. One house closed that had been open for a century.

In a Rural Store.

Zenas Dane.]

Female Customer—"Got any sarghum merlasses?"

Rural merchant—"Yes'm."

"Are they good?"

"Yes'm—tip top."

"Ain't all full o' settlin's?"

"Oh, no; ol'ar ez ile."

"Made from this year's crap?"

"Yes'm; Joe Higgins made 'em to his mill, an' Joe makes mighty good sarghum."

"Well, lemme taste 'em." She smells, tastes and pokes her finger into "them."

"Ain't they nice?" asks the merchant.

"Purty fair. I've seed better an' I've seed wuss. How much air they?"

"Fifty cents a gallon."

"Ain't that high for 'em?"

"High? It's dirt cheap. Sarghum's skeerce this fall?"

"Why, I heerd it was oncommon plenty. It's only forty cents a gallon down at Eggsville."

"It ain't no seeh sarghum as this."

"Oh, yes, it is. Liz'y Sharp got some, an' I tasted it."

"I reckon she tuk a hull bar'l if she got it fer that."

"Naw she—she only got a gallon. They say its comin down."

"Comin' down? I'm lookin' to see it six bits a gallon 'fore a month."

"Pshaw! You ain't."

"Yes I am."

"You like to joke, don't you?"

"I ain't joking."

"Aw, you storekeepers make out ez if everything was goin' up."

"Well, sarghum's bound to rise."

"Fifty cents as cheap as you kin sell this?"

"Well, I might say forty-five—see'in' it's you."

"Well, I'll take a pint an' a half, a pound o' sugar an' a half a pound o' coffee an' five cents wuth o' tea an' a sig. You kin throw in a stick o' candy for the baby with a big bill like that, can't you?"

"I dunno, mebbe so. Baby purty well?"

"Tolabel smart; but he's teethin' an' they are comin' hard."

"I know how that goes; my young uns git all their teeth hard. My Jimmy like to have died with his'n. Old man purty smart?"

"Tolabel."

"Nice day; ain't it?"

"So 'tis."

"Anything else now—ginger or clo'es pins or canned peaches or crackers?"

"No, I reckon not. Good-day?"

"Good-day; come agin."

"Yes; I will."

"Do."

"Will."

The State Pharmacists.

Durham Daily Plant.]

At yesterday afternoon's session of the State Pharmaceutical Association, the following were elected to membership: P. A. Mitchell, Graham; P. H. Dalton, Jr., Durham; R. L. Dixon, Milton; A. G. Boyne, Fremont; J. B. Hargrave, Newton.

The Treasurer reported a balance on hand of $184.28.

The Association received invitations from Wilson, Reidsville and Morehead City for the next session, but action was deferred.

TO-DAY'S SESSION.

The Association convened this morning, with President Crawford in the chair.

Morehead City was selected as the place for holding the next session. The time was left with the Secretary, with instructions to make it as near the second Tuesday in July as possible.

An election of officers for the ensuing term was gone into with the following result:

President, J. D. Croom, of Maxton.

1st Vice-President, E. V. Zoeller, of Tarboro.

2nd Vice-President, W. H. Wearn, of Charlotte.

3rd Vice-President, P. W. Vaughn, of Durham.

Secretary, E. V. Zoeller, of Tarboro.

Treasurer, A. S. Lea, of Raleigh.

Executive Committee, H. H. Chears, Reidsville; J. D. Nutt, Wilmington; L. Richardson, Selma; J. L. Prior, Fayetteville; M. Dorsey, Henderson.

A resolution of thanks to the local druggists, the citizens, the Hotel Claiborn, and the St. Cecilia Society, was adopted.

About 11:30 o'clock the Association adjourned its tenth annual session.

Bible Questions.

1. Name an industrious shepherdess mentioned in the Bible.
2. Name an industrious needlewoman.
3. Give two proofs of St. Paul's industry in secular work.
4. Name a man with seven industrious daughters.
5. What church was rebuked for want of industry among its members?
6. Name three instances of industry in corn-fields.
7. Give six commands of St. Paul to practice industry.

Philadelphia Quakers.

Detroit Free Press.]

"Did you see any Quakers in Philadelphia?" was asked of a Detroiter who had lately returned from that city.

"Only one that I was sure of."

"Did he 'thee' and 'thou' you?"

"He did. He got down off his hack and said: "If thee don't pay me $2, I'll knock thy blamed head off," and I paid, although the regular fare was only 12 shillings. You don't want to fool with those Quakers any, and don't you forget it.

Rapidity of Pulsation.

New York Telegram.]

In a new born child the pulse beats 150 in a minute; at one year old, 110; at two, 95; from seven to fourteen, 85; in the adult man, 72, and in the woman, 80. The frequency of the pulse beat is increased by drinking hot water or tea, diminished by drinking these cold. Adding a warm covering to the clothing of the body increases the pulse by about ten beats a minute. Mental activity diminishes it more or less.

A Former Fayettevillian Becomes Famous for "Splicing."

Wilmington Star.]

'Squire R. E. Heide had the pleasure of "splicing" another couple on Masonboro Sound last Sunday. He has become an expert in this line, and he will be known in Masonboro history as the Matrimonial Magistrate.

Then Art a Faithful Son.

Arbela Record.]

"What did Cain do?" asked the Sunday-school teacher.

"Oh, nothing much," replied a timid boy with his finger in his mouth.

"He killed Abel, didn't he?" continued the teacher.

Where's my hat?" asked a bad boy rising to his feet.

"What—where are you going?" stammered the astonished teacher.

"Papa's a Democrat, and he said for me to light right out whenever anybody begins to wave a bloody shirt. Gimme my hat and I'll go."

A Ridiculous Question.

"Do you enjoy good health?" asked Brown of his friend Jones. The reply of Jones was short, sharp and to the point. "Why of course I do, what fool doesn't?" Everyone enjoys good health when he has it. But some people do not have it to enjoy. Sick headache, biliousness, constipation, deranged liver, and a host of ills, real and imaginary, are their heritage. Thousands of persons cure and prevent these distressing complaints by taking Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Purgative Pellets. Small, sugar-coated and easy to take; one a dose.

Chronic nasal catarrh positively cured by Dr. Sage's Remedy.

$100 REWARD. $100

The readers of the OBSERVER will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucus surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength, by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers, that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

Mr. J. P. Joyner:—I gave my child one dose of Boykin's "Worm Killer," purchased of you. It brought 366 worms. It consider it the best worm medicine made. Respectfully,

J. W. THOMAS.

Messrs. I. M. & B. F. Powell, prominent merchants in Columbus County, N. C., wrote us in July, 1887, that "Rev. T. C. Floyd gave his child one dose of Boykin's 'Worm Killer,' and the result was 367 worms. He wishes all interested to know it."

What Doctors Say.

Have used S. S. S. in treatment of blood taint, with remarkable success.

J. WILEY QUILLIAN, M. D., Easley, S. C.

I have used S. S. S. for some time in the treatment of blood poison without disappointment. Physicians will be compelled to acknowledge its merits.

N. L. GALLOWAY, M. D., Monroe, Ga.

I have tried Swift's Specific in a very bad case of Blood Disease, and take great pleasure in saying it was a perfect success, producing a complete cure. I have also tried it in many other cases with good results.

J. R. YEION, Millsap, Tex.

I have used Swift's Specific in my practice for some time, and find it to be all that the proprietors claim for it.

D. M. MCKNIGHT, M. D., Magnolia, Ark.

I have taken Swift's Specific for secondary blood taint, and derived great benefit. It acts much better than potash or any other remedy that I have ever used.

B. F. WINGFIELD, M. D., Richmond, Va.

Swift's Specific is entirely vegetable, and cures by forcing out the impurities through the skin. Send for book on Blood and Skin Diseases, mailed free.

THE CANNING FACTORY.

By a little concert of action a Fruit Canning factory may easily be added to the list of prosperous and renumerative industries of Fayetteville. It therefore behooves our people to give the matter a thorough investigation and set the ball in motion. Let our business men subscribe twenty five, fifty or one hundred dollars, such as they can spare from the exactions of their daily business, and the sum total for a joint stock company, with sufficient capitol for operating the business, will have been made up.

To the town of Fayetteville'a Fruit Canning Factory would be of a vast deal of good, and keep at home in circulation among our people, the twenty odd thousand dollars sent abroad annually for canned goods with which to supply the local trade. Besides it would create a market for such vegetables &c., right here at home and would be the means of distributing more money among the farmers, who would at the time being or subsequently, spend the same amount with the merchants of Fayetteville. Nothing, therefore, would be lost by the transaction.

That it can be made a paying investment, has been proved beyond peradventure by the Committee appointed to investigate the cost of production &c., all of which can be seen by applying at this office.

FAYETTEVILLE'S OPPORTUNITY.

We are authorized upon the authority of a resolution passed by the stockholders and directors of the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway Company, to say that the Directors of this Company have authorized President Gray to negotiate with the incorporators of the Fayetteville and Aberdeen Railroad Company with the view to inquiring into the feasibility of building and equpping the line from Fayetteville to Albemarle, a distance of about fifty or sixty miles. Of course there are contingencies upon which the C. F. & Y. V. Railroad Company proposes to build this line, all of which will be hereafter made known through the columns of the OBSERVER. In the meantime, we hope our people will give this matter their personal consideration in order that they may act intelligently in the premises at the proper time. More anon.

FIRST IN WAR, LAST IN PEACE.

North Carolina opened the celebrations of the revolutionary period at Charlotte, May 20, 1875. She will close the centenary era of those memorable events at Fayetteville on November 21, 1889.

It is the duty of the whole State to be fitly represented at the Cumberland Centennial in November. Every inhabitant of North Carolina, who can, should visit the historic old Cape Fear region on that occasion. Perhaps there is nothing connected with the history of the revolutionary times of greater significance or of more importance for the success of the representative form of government then proposed and to the welfare of the people thereunder, than the action and influence of the State of North Carolina in refusing to adopt the Constitution of North Carolina until the rights of the States had been better guaranteed, and the limitations of the powers of the Federal government more clearly defined.

Truths of history will be brought out, and made to assert themselves, through the celebration at Fayetteville, of which many of us are supremely ignorant. Facts will be presented there to interest where before we have stood criminally indifferent. It will be one of the grandest occasions, commemorative of North Carolina history, within the annals of the State. The historical addresses delivered will be the finest our people have ever listened to, and the fire of patriotism will be rekindled to burn, as they have not, since the days in which our great fathers did the deeds we are so fortunately privileged to illustrate.

Happily, the opportunities of travel are unsurpassed for conveniently reaching Fayetteville this year. She now enjoys all-rail connections with every portion of the State. The great system of railroad now centre there, contributed to at Sanford, Goldsboro and by all the lines entering or traversing our territory. Accommodations for entertaining large bodies of people and the visiting military and bands are ample and the locality is notably among the most hospitable of the whole country.

North Carolinians ought to unite in making this the grandest celebration of all State events. Whatever of State pride there may be in the souls of our people shall manifest itself at Fayetteville on the twenty-first of next November.—Wilmington Messenger.

In the celebration of this great event of events, Fayetteville proposes to eclipse all former celebrations of an historical nature, and extends a warm and generous invitation to the citizens of North Carolina to join with us, without regard to section, in making the celebration what it should be.

By reason of the fact it was on Fayetteville's own soil—on the identical spot where the City Hall and Market house now stands that the Legislature of 1789 convened and ratified the Constitution of the United States, elected the first United States Senator and established the State University at Chapel Hill, that the event should be celebrated here.

Some ask the question, why not Greensboro, Durham, Asheville, Charlotte, Raleigh and Wilmington celebrate this event. To all such we answer that the reasons are to be found in the above.

Judge Russell, of Wilmington, made a gallant fight for the Judgship of the Northern District of Florida, made vacant by the death of Judge Settle, but the opposing army of Florida Rads was too great and the Judge was forced to retreat in regular order.

Thursday of last week was a "field day" for Tammany Hall Democrats, Maj. Grant having given several members of this organization fat places.

JOHN NICHOLS says he is not a candidate for the position of Commissioner of Customs nor for anything else.

NEW USE FOR COTTON SEED—FOOD FOR REFLECTION.

The time was when the cotton plant was cultivated for the lint alone, and everything else about it was considered of little or no value. The stalk was plowed under, and the seed, if used at all, was used as a fertilizer. Now the cotton seed oil industry has become a great one, annually increasing, and the oil is rapidly winning favor for various uses, and for culinary purposes in place of lard, in universal use before the cotton seed oil was introduced. The time is not far distant when the stalk will be utilized in the manufacture of paper, and the butt in the manufacture of bagging as a substitute for jute.

Mr. Edward Atkinson once remarked that if the New England people had the cotton plant they would get rich out of the stalk and plant, if they had to throw away the lint. If there be any people on the earth who would get rich out of what other people saw no money in it is the New England people. Mr. Atkinson's remark was not intended so much to compliment the thrift of the New Englander, as to express his opinion of the inherent possibilities wrapped in the bark of the cotton plant. But a new use has been found for the hull and the cotton seed meal after the oil has been extracted. The meal has been used mixed with other articles as feed for stock, but now cattle are stall-fed for beef on cotton seed hulls alone, and it is said they fatten quickly upon it and make fine beef. The Atlanta Constitution states that a firm in that city cleared $20,000 last year by fattening beeves, to which cotton seed hulls and meal were fed and nothing else. If this be so, there are possibilities in the cotton seed which were not taken into account when the cotton oil industry was established, and an additional value of no small proportions is added to it. It makes stock raising in the cotton belt, where grass and grain culture have been neglected or deemed impracticable, a new and a profitable business, and it should and will not only encourage stock raising, but also the introduction and fostering of better grades.

It seems scarcely credible that the Cattle King of the west may find a competitor in the cotton planter of the South, and yet as strange things have happened. It has been said that King Cotton must yield the sceptre to King Grass, but it may be that King Cotton will again assert his regal supremacy and King Grass be compelled to abdicate. A few years ago the man who asserted that the South would enter the field of the iron industry and compete successfully with the iron manufacturers of Pennsylvania, or the field of the cotton manufacturing industry and compete successfully with the long established cotton manufactories of New England, would have been pronounced a visionary, yet she has done it in an astonishingly brief period of time.

Shipping fat cattle to Northern markets from Southern plantations would not be a more remarkable reversal of the old order of things than shipping Southern-made cotton goods to New England or Southern-made iron to Pennsylvania, both of which are now of common occurrence.---Wilmington Star.

It is in this direction that our people must sooner or later turn their attention for the development of the resources which abound so largely in this and other sections of the State. Until then we cannot hope to enjoy that degree of prosperity and thrift other sections are thrilling the hearts of hundreds and thousands with. Our natural advantages, it is true, will continue to drive the wheels of progress, but we must "put on more steam" and the above is good material with which to "fire up," and "food for thought" without end.

EX-JUDGE THOMAS RUFFIN.

Wilmington Star.]

Judge Ruffin, who was buried yesterday at Hillsboro, was born in 1824, and was the fifth son of Chief Justice Ruffin. He entered the State University in 1840, and graduated in 1844. He began the practice of law in Rockingham county, but removed to Graham, Alamance county, where he resided at the breaking out of the war. On the fall of Fort Sumpter, he volunteered and entered the ranks of the Confederate army as a private. On May 3rd, 1861, he was commissioned Captain of Company E, 13th Regiment N. C. Troops. In March, 1862, was appointed to the Lieutenant-Colonelcy of his regiment. He was wounded at South Mountain in September, 1862, and resigned in 1863.

After the war he located in Greensboro, where he resided for several years, when he took up his residence in Hillsboro. He was associated with Judge Dillard in the practice of the law, and was appointed to the vacancy on the Supreme bench caused by the resignation of Judge Dillard. He resigned from the bench in September, 1883, on account of failing health, and for the remainder of his years, so far as his health would permit, devoted himself to the practice of the law. We gather these facts from an interesting sketch in the Raleigh News and Observer.

Commendable.

FAYETTEVILLE, N. C., May 27, '89.

MR. EDITOR:—The people of Fayetteville have won for themselves an enviable reputation for hospitality, generosity and enterprise, and charity is one of their chief characteristics, which oftentimes finds expression in small deeds of philanthropy; which, to the disinterested appear insignificant, but to the oppressed and burdened are fraught with important benefits. In nothing has such a kindly spirit manifested itself more than the recent compliance of the merchants with the appeal to close their stores during the summer months at 7 P. M. These weary but faithful manipulators of the yard-stick and scales duly appreciate this evidence of the kindness of their employees as the writer can testify to from conversations had with several of them. When the reason for more active and diligent efforts draws near, these same clerks will be found more faithful and efficient than ever in the discharge of their duties, in consequence of the recreation afforded them for one hour every day from the cares and toils incident to their employment. I am not a clerk, but have been, and have a fellow-feeling for them, and know what a boon to them this early closing is, and merely wish to express the views of approbation entertained by an OUTSIDER.

Rust and Cotton Heard From.

SOCIETY HILL, S. C., May 25, '89.

Editor Observer:

I note in your Agricultural Column, May 23rd, an article from "Tiller of the Soil." The writer of this (an old Fayetteville boy) with twenty odd years' experience in making cotton, ventures to give his ideas of rust on cotton. I am now tilling soil on Pee Dee River, which has been cleared 150 years, and of this long period, I suppose 65 years of the time, it has been in cotton. About 18 years ago my experience on this land commenced. Rust was frequent and disastrous. As the land im proved by cultivation and fertilizing the rust left us, and we believe rust is caused simply from lack of some important element of cotton plant; food that it is not propagated as smut in wheat, by being on seed or in contact with seed, is well known to me. I had a neighbor a few years ago to plant some seed from which the lint and cotton had been taken off by a chemical process well known, leaving the seed perfectly smooth and brown, very much like the long cotton seed except in color. Rust was very apparent in this cotton, for the land was poor and no fertilizer used.

The remedy for rust in cotton is drainage, plant food, complete preparation and cultivation. Oats followed by peavine hay or corn with peas, or watermelons or any crop almost is a better paying crop than cotton.

We can make but little money here on cotton and I know our lands and climate are far superior to Cumberland lands for cotton. I planted one of the first cotton crops after the war on a fine oak and hickory ridge on the east side of the Cape Fear river in 1866. The yield was good, about 1300 pounds to the acre. The same land rusted in '67 and '68; was clear of rust in '66, being fresh and never in cotton before.

I have the good fortune to have for my nearest neighbor Edward E. Evans, Esq., probably one of the best practical and theoretical farmers in this State and a writer for the Southern Cultivator, learned in "fungus and mite" lore in vegetation, and a man withal of close observation, for he is always studying the crops, &c., on the spot, his experience of twice the length of mine is, as I have stated, simply a lack at the proper time of some important element of plant food. Furnish this and you have no rust.

Now a farmer has some other notions besides farming, and one of mine was a desire to visit the old town and hear the great preacher, Mr. Pearson, but could not go, so I enjoyed your interesting report of his work.

I read the OBSERVER with all the pleasure possible for an old Fayettevillian. I miss my old friend, Major Haigh, for he was of the "old stock" and very highly prized, but I can just as truly enjoy the OBSERVER under your management, for I see you have the old town's interest fully at heart. Hope to meet at the centennial. Yours truly,

J. M. WADDILL.

There are few towns in the State whose progress is more rapid and substantial than Dunn's. Several new buildings are in course of erection, among which are two new hotels and a large brick store. A splendid trade in the fall is anticipated by all the merchants.

A most disgraceful riot occurred in Dunn on Saturday evening late. Knives, clubs and sticks were indifferently handled, but no serious damage was done. The warrant issued for the arrest of the peace-breakers contained a list of names which, if written in a line, would measure probably ten feet in length.

The chief topic of discussion now, is the condition of the crops. The farmers are cheerful and expect an abundant harvest. Everything considered, the farms are promising. It is gratify to notice in nearly every issue of your paper some valuable article on matters of agriculture. The farmers of course enjoy that feature of the paper.

The OBSERVER Trade issue will make its appearence in a few days.

Don't fail to attend the meeting in the Town Hall this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

The Pearson Meetings in Greensboro are being attended by large crowds day and night.

Whortleberries have made their appearance on the Fayetteville market at 10cts per quart.

Work has already commenced on Maj. T. S. Lutterloh's new and handsome residence at "Rosenvie."

We learn that an effort will be made to secure Rev. Sam Jones to conduct a series of meetings here this fall.

John Reynolds was committed to jail here Saturday, charged with an assault upon a little ten year old child.

The "Improvements made in North Carolina" each week will hereafter constitute a special feature of the OBSERVER.

The six per cent. bonds of the Cape Fear & Yadkin Valley Railway Company sold in Baltimore and Richmond Tuesday for 109½.

An excursion train will be run from here to Greensboro to-morrow, thus affording our people another opportunity to hear Mr. Pearson. See adv.

From the Marlboro Democrat, of Bennettsville, S. C., we learn that Dr. W. C. McMillan, one of the most prominent druggists of Marion, died last week.

Work on Mr. Geo. Rosenthal's new building on Hay street is progressing nicely, and the building, though not so large, will be one of the handsomest fronts in this city.

The Corporators of the Fayetteville and Albemarle Railroad are hereby request to meet in the town of Fayetteville, N. C., on Saturday, 15th June, 1889, for the purpose of organization of said company.

A fine rain visited this section Sunday last, reviving the drooping spirits of the "horney-handed sons of toil," and will hurry the "huckleberries" to ripen, much to the joy and delight of the impatient gatherers.

We return thanks for a neat card of invitation to the State Colored Normal School of Fayetteville. The literary address was delivered yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock by Prof. J. F. K. Simpson, A. M. Commencement exercises this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

Mr. J. M. Lamb's little 7 year old son, Crawford, was shot in the chest here last Monday by a colored boy. A physician was summoned and probed for the bullet, but without avail. No cause can be assigned for the negro's recklessness and he has since disappeared.

In all there have been 137 accessions to the different churches in this city by those converted during the Pearson meetings. This of course does not include those converted in other sections and who have connected themselves with the Church of God in other communities.

Extra Fine Fruit.

Mr. J. S. Breece will accept our thanks for the most delicious straw and raspberries of the season—the Burbank, Hansell and Belmont varieties, respectively. It would indeed be a difficult matter to find their equal in any clime.

Mr. McKethan Gets the Plum.

Mr. Pope, Washington, of Goldsboro, having failed to pass a successful examination before the Examining Board at Anapolis, for a Naval Cadetship, Mr. A. A. McKethan, Jr., of this city, receives the appointment by reason of having been appointed Alternate, by the Board of Examiners at Warsaw recently.

Exchanged Pulpits.

Rev. R. T. Gray, of this city, and Rev. F. R. Underwood, of Sampson, exchanged pulpits last Sunday. Mr. Underwood delivered a very impressive sermon from Hebrews, 6th chapter, 18-19th verses, which was listened to with marked attention. We have no fears but what Mr. Gray fully sustained himself in Mr, U's pulpit,

Improvements at the C. F. & Y. V. Depot.

The C. F. & Y. V. R. R. Company believes that anything worth doing at all is worth doing well, and the Company has therefore furnished the crossing on Hay street with new and improved railway crossing gates, a decided improvement, as well for the protection of stock and pedestrians as upon the old order of things.

A Preacher's House Entered in His Absence and What Was Done.

Last Thursday the Rev. T. P. Barclay, pastor-elect of the Presbyterian church in this place, took the North bound train on the C. F. & Y. V. road to meet his family who were on their way from Kentucky. He met them at Siler City and returned with them. On their arrival at the Manse they found the house had been entered and from the parlor to the pantry was evidence of the presence and work of the intruders. Strange to say nothing was missing. But on the contrary, parlor, hall, dining-room and pantry, all had something to show which the occupant had not left there. The pantry had very much the appearance of a young family grocery store. The dining-room presented a table spread with a bountiful dinner and adorned with beautiful flowers. Hall, parlor and bedrooms all spoke of the generous presence of Fayetteville's noble women.

Last but not least, there was a company of the latter with smiling faces and kindly words and hearty hand grasp, to welcome the travel-worn pilgrims from old Kaintuck, to the beautiful home in the old elm-shaded Manse.

After escorting the pastor and family to the well-filled dining table, the ladies departed, leaving behind a shower of good wishes, and a little company whose hearts were too full for utterance of their feelings of gratitude for such a loving welcome.

Very soon the fact leaked out that the bountiful supply of substantials left in pantry and store- room was not all the gift of the Pastor's own flock. But from friends outside his own pale were tokens of kindly regard. These of course touched a tender chord in the hearts of the new comers and caused them to realize that Fayetteville and not a part of it only, bade them welcome in the name of a common Lord and Master.

And now this is written because the above mentioned pastor-elect knew not how to express his warm appreciation of this and many other tokens of the generous reception to the hearts and homes of the noble old city in the old North State. He therefore has asked the assistance of the OBSERVER in an attempt to put in words at least a partial expression of his appreciation of Fayetteville kindness and christian hospitality.

While he does not expect to be fully worthy of all the good-will and kindly regard shown him, he is willing to pledge on behalf of himself and family, hearts and minds ready at all times to respond to the extent of their ability, in deeds, if not in words to such a generous welcome.

Run Over by the Train.

The North bound passenger train on the C. F. & Y. V. R. R. ran into a crazy woman between Hasty and John's Station yesterday, carrying her about 40 yards before the train could be brought to a standstill. Upon examination it was found that she had received a serious if not fatal wound in the head, besides internal and external bruises. She was still living, however, at last reports. All efforts to stop the locomotive were made upon her discovery, but the accident happened near a short curve and could not be avoided under the circumstances.

Cotton Factory Items.

The Fayetteville Cotton Factory has shipped to date about one hundred bales of their manufactured goods to the Northern markets, and are making shipments twice a week.

New machinery is to be added and the present capacity increased by the use of steam, when Maj. McKethan tells us, the factory will run day and night.

Already five cottages have been built near the factory, on Gillespie street, and are being occupied by the employees of the factory.

Business!

Shepherd Lodge No. 3372, Knights of Honor, of this town has just paid Mrs. Fannie Schlossberg, the widow of Mr. Max Schlossberg who died not long since in this town, the sum of two thousand dollars being the full amount of the policy Mr. S. had in that order. Not many months since the order paid a like sum on the life of Capt. Wm. T. Taylor. At the cost of $38, $4,000 has been brought here. The order is a very strong one and insurance in it only costs one dollar per month, a thousand.

A Suggestion.

We suggest that every business man in Fayetteville have something like the following printed on the back of each and every envelope sent out from this place until after the celebration in November: "Fayetteville will celebrate in grand style November 21st, '89, the Centennial Anniversary of the adoption by North Carolina of the Constitution of the United States, the same having been ratified in this city November 21st, 1789. Ex-President Jefferson Davis will honor the occasion with his presence. Join us."

Adjourned Meeting.

An adjourned meeting of the citizens of Fayetteville will be held in the Town Hall, to-day at 4 o'clock, for the purpose of perfecting the necessary arrangements for the Centennial in November, and it is earnestly desired that our citizens turn out, one and all, at the ringing of the bell. Reports from the various committees will be made and the orator of the day announced. Let everybody turn out.

Still Holds the Fort

Despite the repeated efforts of outsiders and the "powers that be" at Washington for Mr. H. R. Hall's scalp, of the Railway Postal service, Mr. Hall still "holds the Fort," and proudly walks the quarter-deck of his car between Mt. Airy and Bennettsville. It is said that he is one of the most efficient mail agents in the service and will hold his place until "death do us part."

Chapel Hill Commencement.

Thanks to the Marshals, for an invitation to the Centennial Commencement exercises of the State University at Chapel Hill June 4th, 5th and 6th. The Marshals are, Alexander McIver, Chief; W. S. Snipes from the "Di." Society and Ed. R. McKethan, from the "Phi." Society.

Fayetteville Connected With Charleston, S. C.

Ere this issue of the OBSERVER reaches its destiny, the Railway between the towns of Rowland and Plainview, will have been completed, and Fayetteville will thus be connected by rail with Charleston, S. C., via the Alma and Little Rock Railroad, a distance of only about 200 miles.

Mr. W. G. McMillan.

Mr. W. G. McMillan, of Red Springs, now of the U. S. Navy, has returned to New York with his crew from his cruise around the world, and will visit the scenes of his boyhood days again, either in June or July. He has a host of friends in this city who will welcome him back to his "native heath."

Horner School at Oxford.

We make our acknowledgements for an invitation to the 38th anniversary exercises of the Franklin Society, Horner school Oxford, N. C., Tuesday, June 4th. The literary address will be delivered by the Hon. W. H. Blount, of the Wilson Mirror, a scholar and a poet, whose beautiful thoughts and chaste language will thrill every heart within the sound of his voice.

Prof. Alexander Graham Re-elected.

From Tuesday's Charlotte Chronicle we learn that Prof. Alexander Graham, a native of Cumberland, but now of Charlotte, has been re-elected Principal of the Charlotte Graded Schools, a position he has held for the past two years. There were four applicants for the position, but "the gentleman from Cumberland" carried the day.

A Generous Tender.

Mr. E. J. Lilly, ever alive to the promotion of every enterprise in Fayetteville, has very kindly tendered the use of a building free of charge; for the Fruit Canning Factory while Mr. A. H. Slocomb, who is no less zealous for the upbuilding of the town, has offered the free use of a boiler for the experimental purposes of testing a canning factory in Fayetteville.

Mr. Pearson on Dogs.

In seems that dogs have been infesting the Pearson meetings at Greensboro, as the following from the Workman of that place would indicate:

"He made some allusion to dogs at religious meetings, their liability to distract the attention of the audience, and was sure that the devil could use the dog very successfully to counteract the preaching of the gospel. Neither a big dog nor a little dog had any business at church."

Wake Forest College.

Wake Forest College is to be congratulated upon issuing such a handsome card of invitation for the Commencement Exercises, June 10th, 11th, 12th and 13th, for the receipt of which we extend thanks. The Alumni Address will be delivered on Tuesday by Hon. C. M. Cook; Wednesday Addresses to the Societies by Hon. W. L. Wilson, of Virginia; Wednesday, Baccalaureate Sermon by Rev. J. W. Carter, D. D., of North Carolina.

Fayetteville District S. S. Conference.

Fayetteville Dirtriet Sunday School Conference in session at Laurinburg Friday and Saturday of last week, elected the following officers for the ensuing year:

President, W. H. Neal, Laurinburg; Vice-President, J. J. Partridge, Jonesboro; Secretary and Treasurer, R. D. Philips, Laurinburg. Fayetteville was represented by Mr. J. M. Lamb, Rev. S. F. Ethridge and Misses Hettie and Maggie King. Carthage was chosen as the place for the next annual meeting.

Masonic.

The Grand Chapter Royal Arch Masons, of North Carolina, closed its session in Wilmington, Friday, by the election of the following officers for the ensuing year: Grand High Priest, M. M. Katz; Deputy Grand High Priest, F. M. Moye; Grand King, E. S. Martin; Grand Scribe, H. C. Fagg; Grand Treasurer, William Simpson; Grand Secretary, D. W. Bain; Grand Chaplain, A. H. Stubbs; Grand Captain of the Host, E. D. P. Powers. The next annual convocation will be held at Asheville. The meeting was largely attended and all report most excellent time during their stay in Wilmington.

How Manufacturing Industries Flourish in Fayetteville.

The OBSERVER's prediction that no Southern city or town offered superior advantages to Fayetteville for the location and establishment of manufacturing industries, has been confirmed by the success which has attended the career of the Fayetteville Iron Bound Bucket Company, recently established in this city. The increase of business of this firm has been such as to make it necessary that the present capacity be increased, and Mr. Geo. Denny, the General Superintendent, left Friday morning for Boston, for the purpose of placing an order for new machinery with which to enlarge this plant.

Quwhiffle Items.

Reported for the Observer.]

Farmers are complaining of the dry weather, but crops are looking well and in fine condition. Wheat and oats look remarkably well.

Mr. Angus Lamont, an old man of about 80 years was found dead in Richmond county, near here last Sunday. He left his son's house in Laurinburg about ten days before and said he was going to Mr. Wilks', who lives 15 miles from Laurinburg and near this place. Mr. Wilks in looking for a cow found the body in a mile and a half of his house on the road where it had been over a week. Mr. Lamont died from natural causes as is evident from the resting places found in the sand at intervals. At the place where the body was found he scuffled a great deal to get on his feet and failing to do so he crawled to the middle of the road and there expired.

May 27, 1889. QUWHIFFLE.

Fayetteville Graded School.

The Fayetteville Graded School closed on Friday, May 24th. The success of the school for the year just ended, is without precedent. Notwithstanding the division of the school district by the School Board last summer, the enrolment has been about the same as last year—about 330. For the first time in years there has been no trouble about paying the teachers. The Treasurer has paid off at the end of every month; and on the 24th of May each teacher received a check for salary up to date.

It is gratifying to see the interest growing in regard to this, our most important institution.

No town in the State has superior school facllities. The cost is less than any where else, being less than $10 per pupil for the whole school year of about 9 months. The advantages are equal to any, and superior to those offered in any other graded school in the writer's knowledge. Not only the common school studies and the other branches usually taught in graded schools can be obtained here for this trifling amount, but also four years Latin, two years Algebra, two years Greek and one year Geometry.

It is not only an excellent preparatory school, but it offers advantages as a finishing school, possessed by few of the other graded schools.

The stand taken in their classes by the numerous pupils of the Fayetteville Graded School in the colleges of this and other States, is the strongest evidence of its efficacy. Only last week we spoke of one young lady who was prepared here and who has been made valedictorian at Salem Female Academy. The year before one of the Graded School pupils went to Charlotte Female Institute—acknowledged to have a remarkably high standard—and graduated in the full course in one year, leading her class. One of this year's pupils has received an appointment to the Naval Academy at Annapolis. Although he had only one week's notice for preperation before the Examining Board, he nevertheless stood an excellent examination, fully up to the average. It is due Mr. McKethan to say that he had dropped for nearly two years all the studies upon which he was examined for the Naval Cadetship, except Algebra, upon which he received 100, the highest mark received by any one of the applicants.

Sensation of the Season.

The sensation of the season is the action of a Wake county man in bringing suit against the Railroads of North Carolina for failure to comply with certain sections of the laws of the State.

Egypt Coal Deposits.

Chatham Record.]

The parties who have begun the work of reopening the old coal mine at Egypt, in this county, have plenty of money to push the work vigorously, and they intend to operate on an extensive scale. A few weeks ago the machinery for hoisting the water out of the mine was accidentally broken, after half of the water had been taken out, and the repairing of the machinery (which was very expensive) has caused an annoying delay. A contract has recently been made with the Mecklenburg Iron Works (at Charlotte) for about $7,000 worth of machinery, which will be put in operation during the coming summer. A contract has also been made for relaying the railroad track from the depot at Egypt to the mine, nearly a mile. We hear that the company also propose to lay off a town and make extensive improvements. Egypt may yet become the most important business place in Chatham.

MARRIED.

SHOLAR—KEITHLEY—In Wilmington, on the 25th inst., Mr. JOHN T. SHOLAR to Miss ANNIE J. KEITHLY, of the same place The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. C. Beaman and witnessed by a number of friends and relatives. The groom is formerly of Cumberland, and at present is engaged as operator in the W. U. T. office at Wilmington.

McDONALD—UNDERWOOD—On Sunday, the 26th, at the residence of the bride's father, T. J. Underwood in Flea Hill township, by Rev. D. D. McBryde, Mr. D. F. McDONALD to Miss ELLA UNDERWOOD.

The attendants were Dr. E. P. Rose and Miss Lillie J. Williams; Mr. D. A. McAllister and Miss Cattie McD. Williams; Mr. D. A. C. Denning and Miss Cattie Gilchrist. May the richest blessings ever attend these young people on their future pathway in life.

DIED.

HALL—Departed this life at his home near Wade, on the 20th inst., Mr. A. F. HALL, aged about 47 years. The deceased was a brother to our very highly esteemed Register of Deeds, and a gentleman greatly admired by his host of friends among whom he had spent his life. Mr. Hall had been a long sufferer from injuries sustained while a mere child, but at all times bore his affliction heroically. We extend our sympathies to the bereaved parents, relatives and friends.

THE SEED AND SOWERS.

Ever so little the seed may be,
Ever so little the hand;
But when it is sown it must grow, you see,
And develop its nature—weed, flower or tree;
The sunshine, the air and the dew are free
At its command.

If the seed be good, we rejoice in hope
Of the harvest it will yield.
We wait and watch for its springing up;
Admire its growth, and count on the crop
That will come from the little seed we drop
In the great field.

But if we heedlessly scatter wide
Seeds we may happen to find,
We care not for culture or what may betide;
We sow here and there on the highway side.
Whether they've lived or whether they've died,
We never mind.

Yet every sower must one day reap
Fruit from the seed he has sown.
How carefully, then, it becomes us to keep
A watchful eye on the seed, and seek
To sow what is good, that we may not weep
To receive our own!

THE LINEN INDUSTRY.

An Important Economic Question for the Farmers.

Washington Correspondence Wil. Messenger.]

One of the most important economic questions of the time is, "what shall take the place of wheat on farms where it can no longer be raised at a profit?" This question is one that has received earnest consideration at the Agricultural Department, but as yet no product has been presented that fully commends itself to the official as furnishing the answer, although many have been suggested. Last week Professor Willets, the Assistant Secretary of Agriculture, had under consideration a letter from Ireland which he thinks may be a solution of the problem, if the statements made can be substantiated. The writer says:

"I have long had an earnest interest in flax growing and linen manufacture, and now address you in behalf of these industries. I have been familiar with flax growing in America since 1840 and am thoroughly informed on the primitive household manufacture, and later of the efforts to spin and weave by machinery, and the almost complete failure of all efforts in this direction until now there are only two establishments weaving, one at Webster, Mass., and the other at Appleton, Wis., the latter doing but little and neither weaving anything but crash. Besides these, there are thread and yarn mills, mostly branches of British manufactories, and the twine and cordage mills. A part of the reason why linen is not made in America is that the raw material is not as flexible and requires more costly manipulation and much more labor than with cotton, wool and silks. Another reason is that when in 1861 Congress enacted tariff laws there was no association to act for the linen interest, and the duty was left too low to correspond with the high duty of raw material, while with a low duty upon cotton woolen and silks, capital turned to the latter as the safest investment, and flax and linen have been neglected. (There can be no raw flax industry until there is a market for the fibre)

"There is nothing in the climate or soil conflicting with the assertion that just as good flax and linen may be produced in every State in the American Union as in any country. Germany now spins and weaves the finest linen, and she has no essentially differing climate from America.

"If the inducement of protective duties cannot be given in favor of linen manufacture, then bounties must be offered in shape of the appropriation of the present income from duties to encourage the making of linen from American flax fibre. At least such an experiment must be made as will test and demonstrate the practicability or impracticability of the establishment of this important industry upon American soil.

"Many things become successful in America from the facility with which the people take up and adopt improved processes and appliances, and this may be the salvation of linen industry, of the importance of which there is no question. There is every reason why the American farmers should produce a million acres of flax for both seed and fibre over and above what is now produced, which would give 12,000,000 to 15,000,000 bushels of seed worth as many millions of dollars, and two millions and a half tons of flax straw worth $5,000,000 and from which 500,000 tons of flax fibre would be obtained worth $100,000,000.

"Once established American invention, as in all other industries, soon build an industry to consume this raw material. Further than this, I have to say that I believe an entire revolution in flax and linen for the whole world is at hand and most assuredly awaiting the operations of the next few months to demonstrate this in America. I have discovered a process by which the flax straw is handled and its fibre recovered in a length of time from dry natural straw to the perfect fibre, doing away with all water or dew wetting and the labor of scutching and producing a fibre of the color of cotton and as soft and fine as raw silk, saving the great expense of the bleaching, while the fibre is much stronger and the yield much greater than by the old process of dew and water rotting.

"I have demonstrated the practicability of this invention; have made the fibre from American, Irish and Belgium flax; had it spun and woven, and there is an exhibit of the American product at the Paris Exposition, placed there by Mr. Dodge, of the department of agriculture at Washington, last January, and this invention has the endorsement of the linen men of England. A Company has been formed and the apparatus is at work here, and the process will be at work all over Europe at an early day.

"I make this announcement for you and to the people of America, simply that a few cords of flax may be grown in the proper way in America prepratory to a practical demonstration of the process there next autumn. I wish the State experimental farms to grow a small amount in each State, and such private farmers as are disposed to do the same. The flax should be sown upon any good mellow soil which has been well manured the past year or active chemical fertilizers may be employed to a reasonable extent. The seed should be sown at the rate of two and a half bushels on the acre of land, brushed in, and no further attention is needed, excepting that any large weeds be removed until the flax has "turned" for half its length, when it should be pulled, cured and cared for, to keep bright in the same manner as is done with hay.

This seed may be taken off by rippling or roller threshing, and there will be a market for all flax straw thus grown at $20 per ton. The crops should give two and a half tons of straw to the acre and twelve to fifteen bushels of seed. The cost of pulling is in Canada $5 an acre. I enclose you a small sample of the fibre as produced in five minutes by the new process from the flax straw taken in its natural condition, and no injurious chemicals are ussd nothing more so than an emulsion of linseed oil."

The sample enclosed was examined with much interest by Prof. Willetts, who in his earlier days had "packed" flax, is so satisfactory that he informed the sender that the subject of his letter would be earnestly considered by the department, which would be earnestly considered by the department, which would lend its aid to any effort to increase or diversify the agricultural industries of the country.

The Drummer.

The drummer inhabits railroad trains; he is always at home on the cars; he also temporarily infests the best hotels In winter he wears an ulster, with the sureingle hanging loose behind; and in summer, a linen duster.

He is usually swung to a satchel containing a comb and brush, another shirt, a clean celluloid collar, and a pair of cuffs; also a railroad guide, and a newspaper wrapped around a suspicious-looking bottle. This is about all the personal baggage he carries, except a "Seaside Library" novel, and a pocket-knife, with a corkscrew in the back of it; he has a two-story iron-bound trunk, containing "samples of dem goots," which he checks through to the next town. He always travels for a first class house—the largest firm in their line of business in the United States. A firm that sells more goods and sells them cheaper than any two houses in the country. He is very modest about stating these facts, and blushes when he makes the statement; but he makes it, nevertheless—probably as a matter of duty.

He can talk on any subject, although he may not know much about it; but what little he knows he knows, and he lets you know that he knows it. He may be giving his views on the financial policy of the British government, or he may be telling you of what, in his opinion, is good for a boil; but he will do it with an air and tone that leaves the matter beyond dispute.

He is at home everywhere, and he never seems to be out of place wherever you may find him; although we do not remember ever to have found him in church. Sitting on his grip-sack at a way-station, waiting for a train six hour's behind time, and amusing the railroad officials, from brakeman to president, with a profuse and robust profanity that gives the air a sulphurous ordor for miles around, he seems in perfect keeping with the surroundings. The scene would be as incomplete without him as a horse-race without a yellow dog on the track.

When the drummer gets into the train, if alone, he occupies two seats; one he sits on, the other he piles up his baggage and overcoat and tries to look as if they didn't belong to him, but to another man who has just stepped into the smoking-car and would be back directly.

Drummers are usually found in pairs, or quartets on the cars. They sit together in a double seat, with a valise on end between them, on which they play euchre and other sinful games

While the drummer is not ostentatiously bashful, neither does he assume any outward show of religion.

What the Features Indicate.

Memory of Events—This is shown by a wide, full forehead in the centre. A bulge over one eye, which is partially closed, may also denote a man's memory of an event, the event being his calling another man a liar and getting knocked down for it.

Moral Courage—Denoted by wide nostrils, short neck, and eyes set directly in front. Men of great moral courage are fault-finders, usually. They snort wildly when not pleased, which accounts for the wide nostrils. At a ballet show they have the moral courage to sit directly in front, like their eyes.

Self-esteem—This quality shows itself in a long or deep upper lip. A barber is a man of great self-esteem—too much lip.

Perception of Character—This is indicated by a nose with a broad tip. Give a waiter a broad "tip" and he will perceive character where there isn't any.

Conscientiousness—This is shown in the face by a bony chin, prominent cheek bones and a square jaw. A thoroughly conscientious woman is ready for a square jaw with her husband any time.

Reasoning Power—A broad face indicates this faculty, as no one can exercise it successfully without broad views. A high nose usually accompanies it, even though it be a false nose, which comes high, anyhow.

Language—This faculty is exhibited in many parts of the face, particularly by a large mouth, and large, full eyes, wide open. Big-mouthed men are rarely at a loss for language, and are able to spit it out in great chunks. They never mince their words. Being egotistical, they indulge in large, full I's.

Firmness—A large, broad chin indicates the presence of this faculty, though you don't need to have a very long "chin" with a man who possesses it to find it out.

Power of Observation—Situated just above the top of the nose. Some people endeavor to supply its absence with spectacles.

The Eyes.

Those who properly appreciate the value of eyes in perfect condition will be interested in the following rules laid down by Dr. J. C. Lundy, of Detroit, for the care of these organs:

Avoid reading and studying by poor light.

Light should come from the side, and not from the back or front.

Do not read or study while suffering great bodily fatigue, or during recovery from illness.

Do not read while lying down.

Do not use the eyes too long at a time for near work, but give them occasional periods of rest.

Reading and study should be done systematically.

During study avoid the stooping position.

Weary, worn and discouraged,
Heartsick and hopeless and sad;
Longing for help and comfort
When none can be had,— describes the condition of those persons who are said to be "going down hill," or "going into a decline." There is an indescribable weakness of the system, a general lack of vitality. They cannot tell what the matter is with them. They only know that they feel miserable in mind and body. They are gloomy and despondent. They have tried this and that remedy prescribed by their friends or the doctors. They have failed to receive any benefit from them. They reach the conclusion that there is no help for them and that they must die. Now the fact is that the trouble originates, in nine cases out of ten, in impure blood. There is poisonous, effete matter in it that ought to be got rid of. But how can this be done? Simply by taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, which acts on the blood and various organs of the body in such a way that the man or woman using it seems to be made over,—reconstructed. It is guaranteed to benefit or cure all cases of disease for which it is recommended, or money paid for it will be refunded.

NOTICE.

NORTH CAROLINA, } In the Superior Court.
CUMBERLAND COUNTY, } 1889.

Sarah Sinclair, Hays Jones and others, to the Court ex parte.

Summons for Publication.

This is an action to sell real estate for the purpose of making real estate assets to pay the debts due by the estate and for division among the heirs at law of Isham Jones, deceased.

It appearing to the satisfaction of the Court that the defendant, Quincy B. Sutton, is a non-resident of North Carolina, and after due diligence cannot be found in said State, and is a necessary party to this action, notice is hereby given to the said defendant, Quincy B. Sutton, to appear at the office of the Clerk of the Superior Court of Cumberland County, in Fayetteville, N. C., at the Court House, on the 15th day of June, 1889, and answer the petition of the heirs there on file, when and where the said petition will be heard, and unless cause to the contrary be shown the relief as therein prayed for will be granted.

Witness, Chas. G. Cain, Clerk of said Court, at office in Fayetteville, this 30th day of April, 1889.

Land Mortgage Sale.

By virtue of the power of sale contained in a certain Mortgage executed on the 5th day of February, 1885, by Perry Godwin to John R. Lane, and duly proved and recorded in Cumberland County Registry in Book B, No. 4, page 496, I will expose to public sale at the Court House door in Fayetteville, N. C., for cash, a tract of land containing 1780 acres, in 71st Township, Cumberland County, N. C., adjoining the lands of J. D. Gaddie and others, on the waters of Mill Creek, known as the Page land—more particularly described in said Mortgage Deed.

Time of sale, Saturday, 25th May, 1889, at 12 o'clock M.

JOHN R. LANE, Mortgagee.

R. P. BUXTON, Att'y.
